Customer Reviews

Its tiny, half could fit in a man's shirt pocket, or half would fit in a woman's rear jeans pocket. to describe the size. Closed, its maybe 4x 8" or thinner. /Def.worth it. Too bad I misplaced it in my home quickly. I did wish a few key intersections were on it, more than just the el stop name. Since I only know the north side. But its..a start!

Small, compact, and laminated map that folds and fits in a shirt pocket. I bought this mainly to navigate the "L" and it works for that purpose. The other side of the map has city streets and bus routes, and can be confusing and hard to read given the small size.

The CTA is also in many other maps. Although this is pocket sized so that may be useful to some. The Streetwise Chicago Map includes this map on their Chicago map. So not needed if you buy the Streetwise Chicago Map.

It feels almost silly to criticize an item so inexpensive, but the stickler in me has to point out this doesn't fold to wallet size as the page title and description claims. It certainly fits in a pocket, but you can't place it in a wallet slot like you would a photo or credit card. And once folded, the laminate stays creased so it's almost better just to leave it in the original 'envelope' dimensions. For a two day Chicago trip, this will be somewhat helpful. Anyone new to town and looking to learn the system would be best advised to look elsewhere. You can either have a comprehensive but larger map or just the highlights on a smaller one. Since this falls into the latter, why not allow a person to truly fold it? Oh, and unless you're already a public transportation genius, forget about relying on this for BUS help. Just don't. The CTA is just too complex for this sort of 'guide'.

Really perfect to take along; better than flimsy paper maps... Although I lived near Chicago growing up, I have been away for many years, and this helps the gaps in the memory, not to mention all the changes in the City. Plastic coated, so it won't get rained on, dripped coffee on, nor torn by sweaty palms. I keep this in my car all the time now.

I love these products. The first one I used was the NYC version and it was all I needed to successfully get around by foot and by subway in NYC. I'm easily lost. This one looks to be just as good for the area of Chicago I need to navigate.

It is very helpful for when you want to get around Chicago but so small I had to use a magnify glass with my glasses.

I wish the print was larger to read. I do like that it is laminated. Can't wait to go back to Chicago to use it.
