The Other College Guide: A Roadmap To The Right School For You

Synopsis

A college degree has never been more important—or more expensive. If you're not made of money, where can you get an amazing liberal arts education without your parents having to remortgage the house or cash in their retirement fund? Which degrees will allow you to fulfill your dreams and earn a decent paycheck? What do you really need to know if you're the first in your family to go to college? How do you find good schools that offer a well-rounded campus life for black or Latino students? From the staff of Washington Monthly comes a new kind of college guide, inspired by and including the magazine's signature alternative college rankings. The Other College Guide features smartly designed, engaging chapters on finding the best-fit schools and the real deal about money, loans, and preparing for the world of work. This essential higher ed handbook also highlights information on what to look for (and watch out for) in online programs and for-profit colleges and concludes with fifty profiles of remarkable but frequently overlooked schools. All things being unequal, The Other College Guide will provide American students—and their families and school counselors—with the honest and practical information they need to make sense of the college process and carve a path to the future they imagine.

Here's a college guide that really stands out. There are many college DIRECTORIES out there. Fiske. Yale. Princeton Review. These are all examples of books that give you vast amounts of information about the institutions themselves, but do not necessarily focus on admission or fit. Then there are also a lot of college ADMISSION guides out there too. These books break down the complex admission process for American colleges and universities into instructions that prospective students and parents can understand. Finally, there are many popular "best fit" guides. These are the college directories more generally inspired by Loren Pope's original COLLEGES THAT CHANGE LIVES, and are based on the idea that the best college for you is the one that fits best, not necessarily the one with the most recognizable brand or the highest ranking. This book is a superb admissions guide combined with a thoughtful "best fit" college directory all rolled up in one book. The introductory sections on how to play the college admissions game are really good. They're built around a thorough and rigorous process for selecting the right colleges and then building an admissions strategy that is honest, efficient and realistic. I love the way the guide begins with a prospective student's interests and talents and builds an entire admissions strategy and prospective college list based on this. It's effective and, most importantly, credible. Many "best fit" guides are driven by a kind of under-handed elitism. Not so with this book. There's not an ounce of you'll-just-have-to-settle-for-your-local-community-college-because-you're-not-smart-enough-to-go-to-Princeton snobbery in this book at all.
